Simpler Problems Baffle Man

While world opinion is disturbed and distorted by threads of war and general unrest, while thoughts of budgetary deficits and problems of trade engender anxious minds at home, it is inspiring to turn to conquests of the physical universe which, from time to time, demonstrate man's ability to master infinitely greater problems than those which threaten his peace, security and prosperity. The statement may be trite and commonplace, but it is nontheless true, that man's ingenuity in solving the riddles of the universe is in marked contrast with his apparent stupidity and futility in seeking solutions of others directly within his own purview and which, as a matter of fact, are his own creation.

The thought is suggested by recent addition to scientific knowledge of the atmosphere which is now known to consist of four layers—the troposphere, the stratosphere, the mesosphere and the ionosphere. The troposphere, the layer closest to earth's surface, is the stratum of changing temperature and pressures and of wind-driven clouds. As long ago as 1859, it was discovered, by temperature tests, that this layer terminated relatively abruptly at a height of between six and seven miles. Beyond this height, the temperature was found to be relatively constant up to about 25 miles. This layer of calm, cloudless air of uniform temperature is the stratosphere of comparatively recent discovery by balloon ascension.

As this is written, a clear dust storm clouds the sun, and, as a result, there is a marked fall in temperature. It is palpably correct. It happens that calculations concerning dust shot into the stratosphere by volcanoes prove similar cooling effects. In one seven-hundredth of a cubic mile of fine dust were blown into the stratosphere it could form a screen which would reduce the intensity of the sun's rays by 20 per cent. The screen would remain suspended in that still wilderness zone for years, and it has been suggested that the ice ages have been caused by such volcanic dust storms.

Recent research has shown that, above 25 miles and extending up to 35 miles, is another layer rich in ozone and, for that reason, called the ozonosphere. The significance of this layer so far as human history is concerned, lies in the fact that, because it is absorptive of ultra-violet rays from the sun, the earth is adapted to human habitation. Without this screen, it is said, organic life on earth would be wiped out by sun-stroke.

The ozonosphere gives the stratosphere a screen which would reflect and begining at 50 miles, lies another layer, the ionosphere, so-called because the gasses of the air in that region are in an electrically excited or ionized state. The secrets of this stratum are yielding to radio research although its existence had been deduced long before the advent of radio, to explain some of the earth's magnetic phenomena. The ionized particles have the property of reflecting radio waves back to earth and it has been revealed there are two main layers in the ionosphere, at 65 and 112 miles respectively, which reflect these waves. Each of these is split into two during the daytime making a total of four layers. These four layers probably mark the heights at which particular constituents of the atmosphere become electrified or ionized.

Recent research has further demonstrated that the electrification in the layers is more intense in summer than in winter, the condition being normally due to ultra-violet rays from the sun. Thinkers have also played their part, it having been calculated that the electrical energy continually received in thunderstorms is more than sufficient to produce all the observed ionization in the ionosphere.

That scientific minds applied to investigation of the seemingly inaccessible have produced so much positive achievement is in striking contrast with the meagre fruits of the efforts of politicians, statesmen, economists and "brain trusts" to solve problems of man's social and economic relationships. It suggests the thought that, were scientifically trained minds set freely and independently to work, by universal agreement, upon the problems which seem destined to perpetuate cultural borders between peoples of kindred cultures and similar aspirations, their solution quickly would be forthcoming. The rest would be up to us.

FINE QUALITY TEA
ALWAYS ECONOMICAL

Packers of the finest teas such as "Salada" have been forced to increase prices. As soon as merchandise at present low prices are depleted your favourite beverage will cost you slightly more. This has been brought about by advances at the gardens where production has been purposely restricted in order to save the growers from further disaster. But this comforting beverage is still the cheapest drink in the world—just water itself.

The British naval surveying ship Challenger, has sailed from Portmouth to resume her task of charting the coast of Labrador. This work has never been completed. Last year the admiralty started the Challenger upon the work because it has become necessary to provide safe channels for navigation along this dangerous coast owing to the development of Labrador. The survey will take years to complete.

Diver Will Spend Six Months Studying Fish In Ocean's Depths

Even though he plans to drop 3,000 feet down into the depths of the ocean in a diving glove, William Beebe doesn't expect any sea serpents.

"I saw one once," he said, a grin wrinkling his weathered face. "Then I took a second look. At first glance, it was a tremendous sea serpent writhing away into the horizon. It turned out to be the Atlantic cable."

Mr. Beebe was making last preparations for his departure for the George Bank, where he will spend six months studying deep sea fish and the strange, weird lives they lead.

CAST OFF UGLY FAT

Woman Loses 28 lbs. in 3 Months

"Three months ago," a woman writes, "I was persuaded to try Kruschen Salts to reduce my weight, which was 222 lbs. I had tried other diets but had failed. I now know that Kruschen Salts are different. In three weeks I lost 5 lbs., and in five weeks more, I really must say I feel a different woman. I have lost 28 lbs. to date." (Mrs. S. G. B.)

"If you are overweight take one tea-spoonful of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water before breakfast every morning. There will be no gain or loss of weight, but just a steady decrease of that fatty fat which is as unhealthy as it is ugly. Kruschen is a combination of six mineral salts found in the waters of those European spas that have been famous for centuries of overcast people to reduce weight."

Shoved One-Armed Man Who Did Great Things For England

The story now Sir Edward Hilt Young, minister of health, who lost an arm in the 1918 raid on Zebrugges got a new job. The admiralty was told in a speech by Lord Riddell, Sir Edward, Lord Riddell said, came back from the war and sought a position with the admiralty only to be told there was "no room for a one-armed man."

Sir Edward, we said, retorted: "Well, come with me to Trafalgar Square and I'll show you a one-armed man who did great things for England."

That, concluded Lord Riddell, was too much, "even for the admiralty," and one of his chiefs replied: "If you are another Nelson we will take you on."

Russian Aviators Have

Completed Big Task

Rescued 101 People From Floating Ice Off Siberian Coast

Two months ago 101 Russians were wrecked on floating ice between Wrangell Island and the coast of Siberia. Since that time the Russian aviators in rescuing the 101 a few at a time have held the interest and admiration of the world. The task was recently completed. Not a life was lost.

These, aware of the rich mineral resources of this Arctic island whose inaccessibility has become proverbial, finally determined to populate it with permanent colonists. Of the 101 there were ten women and two children. After their ship had been crushed, the adventurers, who had plenty of food and fuel, built living quarters on the ice and were not uncomfortable in spite of the sub-zero temperatures. They suffered little, but they were constantly in peril, for the breaking up of the ice might bring death at any moment.

The organization of the relief work was thorough and systematic, and its success is a tribute both to the Russian aviators and to the indomitable courage of the Russian aviators. It is not without reason that Moscow is celebrating, and praising the efficiency of the Soviet organization, the hardihood of the marooned men and women, and the devotion and altruism of the rescuers. One Moscow newspaper comments, perhaps with reason, that if the disaster had occurred in the days of the czars the Wrangell colonists would all have perished while bureaucratic officials argued as to who should undertake the rescue.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Light Clothes For Warmth

Several Layers Better Than Small Number Of Heavy Ones

Very thick, heavy garments are not so helpful in making one keep better way to defy the cold is to wear a larger number of light ones.

The late Lord Kelvin was a great believer in this method. On one occasion when he was making tests on his sound machine on a bitterly cold day, he was asked why he did not wear an ulster.

His reply was that he did not need one. The colder the weather, the more thin underclothes he put on, and the air between them insulated his body from the freezing winds.

Many fishermen have also found that several layers of light garments are more useful than a small number of heavier ones, and act accordingly when facing the intense cold frequently encountered on their winter fishing trips.

Canada's Bill For Education

Seems Hard To Solve

Public Expenditure Of About One Hundred And Sixty-Five Million Annually

Public expenditure on education in Canada amounts to $63.5 a year for every student attending school.

A recent report issued by the Canadian government shows that education is a public expenditure of about $165,000,000 yearly.

Education in Canada is under the control of the provinces, except for the task of instructing the Indians who are wards of the Dominion government. The provincial governments have made ample provision for primary, secondary, and higher education.

In each province there is a complete system of public and high schools, aided by the government with liberal grants, while in each province there is also one or more universities where, in addition to the courses in science, there are faculties of medicine, law, and dentistry. Technical schools and agricultural colleges, where those who desire to specialize along these lines may have an opportunity to fit themselves for their work, are found in every province.

In 1932 there were 32,901 educational institutions in Canada employing 56,216 teachers and attended by 2,053,116 pupils, almost 25 per cent of the whole population.

PLAN FOR WHEAT CONTROL UNDER QUOTA SYSTEM

Ottawa.—An individual quota system for western farmers to control wheat production under the wheat agreement, was proposed in the house of commons by Ernest E. Perley, cons., Qu'Appelle, Sask. Farmers would be licensed to sell grain so Canada's 200,000,000-bushel wheat export quota would not be exceeded and compulsory acreage reduction would not become necessary.

The Saskatchewan member made his proposal when continuing the address debate. It would involve co-operation from the provinces, in fact they would assume administrative control. The first step would be to add domestic wheat requirements to the export total and divide this by the number of acres to be seeded in the west this spring. This would give the estimated bushels per acre to be reduced, probably about 15 on an average of 21,000,000 bushels. This would form the basis of the scheme.

Individual farmers then would be issued permits, based on sworn statements as to acreage.

If, for instance, a farmer needed 100 acres and the expected production was 15 bushels, his permit would enable him to sell 1,500 bushels. If his crop exceeded that total, he could purchase the permit of another farmer whose crop did not come up to average. If for instance, the western total crop exceeded the export total of 200,000,000 bushels and the average domestic requirement of 125,000,000 bushels, the surplus above the licensed sales would remain on the farms and would not depress exchange prices.

Sankey Cheats The Law

Hangs Himself in Cell in South Dakota Penitentiary

SIOUX FALLS, S.D.—Vernie Sankey, kidnapper and gangster, called "America's public enemy No. 1," cheated the law by committing suicide.

He hanged himself with two neckties in his cell at the South Dakota penitentiary here, where he was held on federal charges of conspiracy to kidnap for $50,000 ransom last February, Charles Boettcher II, Denver broker.

The body of the one-time railroad worker of Melville, Sask., was found by a guard stationed in a corridor nearby. The notorious outlaw, after fashioning the crude noose with the ties, knotted it to a bar, then stepped off his cot.

E. Neely, deputy United States marshal, one of the two guards assigned to Sankey's cell, discovered the body. Although he had been in the corridor at the time, he was out of sight of Sankey.

This ended the last hope for a send Sankey to prison for life. His cousin, Ben R. Laska, Denver, had disclosed Sankey had planned to plead guilty to a charge of conspiracy to kidnap for ransom in the Boettcher case.

Disorders in Paris

Inability To Balance Budget Factor In Internal Trouble

New York.—The serious disorders in Paris commanded undivided attention in Wall Street because of the importance of France in international finance and her position as leader of the "gold bloc" nations.

The consensus in banking quarters was that if the republic is forced to abandon the international gold standard it will be because of conditions centering chiefly around balancing of the budget, rather than a desire on the part of other nations to bring about such an eventuality by importing gold.

It was generally believed that if the country should declare any sort of ban against the export of gold, it would have an adverse effect in the major financial centers of the world for the time being.

Bankers who have studied the situation in France for some time believe the inability of the various French governments which have been in power in the last few months to balance the budget is the one factor more than anything else contributing to the internal upheaval.

Important also, they pointed out, is the inflated price structure in the country and the unfavorable trade balance.

House Of Lords Reform

Lord Salisbury Moves For Consideration Of Reform Bill

London.—Lord Salisbury moved in the house of lords that a "bundle" address be presented to the king "praying" his majesty to consent to consideration of a bill for reform of the house of lords.

Lord Salisbury took this step because he had been criticized when he first presented the bill last December for wanting the prerogative of the king. He was told he should have sought permission of his majesty to introduce the measure.

The bill would limit membership in the upper house to 220, of whom 150 would be hereditary peers, 120 chosen from outside the hereditary property, royal peers, a reduced number of bishops and law peers. Lord Salisbury said his scheme would give the lords sufficient powers to prevent the country being hurried into vast changes without time to consider them.

He will come direct to Melbourne to attend centenary celebrations of Victoria state. Later he will visit all the other states.

Railway Amalgamation

This May Happen Unless Conditions Improve, Says Hon. Cahan

Ottawa.—Amalgamation of the Canadian Pacific Railway and the Canadian National Railway will be unavoidable unless there is considerable improvement in operations during the present year, Hon. C. H. Cahan, secretary of state, said in addressing the annual meeting of the Ottawa Women's Conservative Association and the Conservative Women's Club.

The minister said he did not speak for the government in making this suggestion, but that it was his considered opinion there would be no alternative to fusion of the two great railroads unless conditions improved.

CATTLE EXPORT FROM CANADA TO BE GREATER

Calgary. Jack Byers, manager of the Western Stock Growers' Association, has received notice from Hon. H. H. Stevens, minister of trade and commerce, that cattle shipments to the United Kingdom qualling these of 1932 would be permitted this year until June 30.

An announcement from Ottawa in December had stated shipments for the first three months of 1933 would be restricted to those in the same period of 1932.

In January, February and March of last year a total of 7,863 beef animals left Canadian ports for the United Kingdom. To date this year nearly 5,000 head have gone to the overseas market and had the December ruling been followed, cattle men here say, exportations would have shortly ceased.

According to the statement from Ottawa 20,260 head of cattle will be permitted to enter the United Kingdom in the first six months of 1933. 22,050 head left Canada, 10,677 of these being from western Canada of which 4,796 were from Alberta.

Byers said the situation for the last half of the year is still obscure. Advice from the United Kingdom indicates the quota against Irish and Canadian cattle has not had the desired effect, for British farmers' returns for home-produced beasts have not been increased, he said.

Rising In Paris Brings Back Memories Of Fateful Days Of 1871

Paris.—As mobs continued rising in Paris, despite steps towards formation of a cabinet of national union, oldsters recalled the fateful communal revolution of 1871 when Frenchmen fought against Frenchmen in Paris, virtually under the eyes of the new German conquerors. The Franco-German war ended with the capitulation of Paris, Jan. 29, 1871, after a five-month siege and bombardment.

On March 2, two weeks after the Germans had formally occupied Paris for two days, the communists were proclaimed; in other words, Paris was declared independent of any government, that of chosen of its own people, regardless of any outside or central power.

The revolutionaries took over affairs and then began the second siege of Paris, a siege by French troops while victorious German troops looked on. Two communists massacred foreign citizens, destroyed many fine buildings. The punishment was ruthless; 29,000 men and women were slain in the streets before the government regained control.

Seriously Injured In Riot

Senator Menier Of Paris Once Well-Known In Canada

Paris.—Senator Gaston Menier, wealthy chocolate manufacturer, was beaten during the rioting in the Place de la Concorde. Knocked down and kicked, his condition was reported as serious.

Senator Menier, seriously injured during the height of the Paris riots, was to be well-known in Canada where he formerly owned the hotel island of Anticosti, in the St. Lawrence river.

Simon Issues Warning

If Disarmament Efforts Fail Britain Must Strengthen Army

London.—Clear notice that if present disarmament efforts fail and a state of unlimited rearmament follows, the United Kingdom will have to reconsider the present levels of her own army, was sounded in the house of commons by Sir John Simon, foreign secretary.

Sir John, speaking in debate on disarmament, stressed the reality of the British plan for disarmament was a realistic plan seeking a reasonable compromise. He declared it would be followed up by a visit of Anthony Eden, lord privy seal, to Paris, Rome and Berlin to make sure the British proposals were completely understood.

The British belief that Germany's claim to equality of rights must be recognized before any progress can be made, besides protecting residents and reduction of armaments was also set forth by Sir John. There was little likelihood of any peace while a great deal of work had to be done, he added.

Riding The Rods

Youth Is Killed Under Wheels Of Train At Jasper

Jasper, Alta. R.C.M.P. were investigating the death of Bill Ross, 16, Edmonton, who died under the wheels of a train in the Jasper park after he had jumped from the tender of the engine.

With a car, Hudson, Jasper, he was returning from Vancouver and was "riding the rods" between the tender and the first car. It is believed that he struck a slippery rail and slid and skidded down to 14 rails. Hadden, when the train stopped at the station, returned to find the lifeless body.

INTEREST CUT IS URGED TO SPEED UP BUSINESS

St. Paul, Freedom, bought; and

Ottawa.—Drastic changes in the general financial policy of Canada were urged on the Bennett government by one of its supporters in the house of commons, James H. Ritt, Cons., Selkirk, Man. He suggested compulsory reduction of interest, conversion of government bonds at lower interest rates and the issuing of $100,000,000 in cash to establish a reconstruction purchasing board.

Canada stood at the economic cross-roads, the Manitoba member said, urging the government to take the action proposed by George Coote, United Farmer member for Macleod. It proposed a large scale nationalizing program financed by new issues of government bonds. No decision was made on the Coote motion, the debate not being concluded.

"There is an issue facing the government to-day, the like of which has never faced any government in Canada," said Mr. Ritt. "To the extent to which the government faces that issue it will be either victorious or defeated and the welfare of the great mass of the Canadian people will be enhanced or the opportunity lost."

Uncontrolled inflation was not acceptable to him, the Manitoba member continued, but "I believe the kind of pressing of sound money we have had in this country is almost unparalleled in the history of any country. It has been astounding for the receivers of interest but it has meant ruin for the masses of Canada."

If the government placed $100,000,000 in a reconstruction purchasing board, reconstruction purchasing would receive $100,000,000 in new money, Mr. Ritt predicted. The board would act as a hopper, where farmers could place orders and receive goods, attaching liens on their property without interest. The orders would go to Canadian manufacturers, financed by the $100,000,000 fund.

Canadians were being placed in servitude by "the straight-shoots of interest," Mr. Ritt said, advocating compulsory rate reductions. His proposed legislation cutting 25 per cent of interest rates payable in Canada under all forms of contract, in addition, Canada might approach the United States owners of Canadian bonds through the international joint commission, seeking one-third reduction rates in that country. Overturning of the present rate was a "Canadian brand."

ALBERTA WILL MAKE MOVE TO STABILIZE PRICES

Edmonton, Alta.—Extension of public utilities board powers to various products to stabilize prices and avoid inflationary pressure was announced in the speech from the throne, read by Hon. W. L. Walsh, lieutenant-governor of Alberta, at the opening of the legislature.

Certain projected highways are to be undertaken as part of an unemployment relief program, it is hoped.

The speech contains the announcement of a broadening of the Debt Adjustment act, passed in 1932, to meet the needs of other classes of debtors, besides protecting residents and farmers and home owners. In order to extend the operation of the act in this respect, certain amendments to the Federal Bankruptcy act will be sought.

The proposal to extend the powers of the public utilities board will raise much debate. Under powers given last year, the board conducted an investigation into milk prices. Some months ago there were suggestions the board should extend price fixing to bread.

Now the government proposes that the principle of last year's legislation be extended to other products and to the distribution of other commodities in order that unfair competition may be avoided, that prices for products and services, that farm wages may be paid and the price to the consumer maintained at a fair and equitable level. The board will be asked to ratify the action of the government in extending to farmers the period for making payments under the Tax Farm mortgage act. The speech also forecasts certain changes in this act.

Brenner Is Freed

Details Of Hanson Payment Are Not Revealed

St. Paul, Freedom, bought; and Edward G. Brenner's again when he returned from 22 days in a jailer's hands, wounded and exhausted. The full $200,000 ransom, $45,000 in 88 bills and the rest in $10 bills, was delivered by Walter Magee at a high in previous plans for payment and thwarted arrangements, causing great anxiety among the family that Brenner might never return.

The legislation proposed, which received the first reading on January 27 when the banker was freed, was sworn to secrecy and would not reveal details of the ransom payment.

Manitoba Session Opens

Revision Of Statutes Is Foreseen In Throne Speech

Winnipeg. Revision and consolidation of provisions in regard to taxation powers of municipalities, consideration of legislation to give greater uniformity in laws relating to succession duties and revision of other statutes were forecast in the speech from the throne, delivered by Lord-Governor J. D. McGeown, at the opening of the second session of the 10th Manitoba legislature.

The unemployment problem continued again, with one out of every ten in Manitoba receiving relief, and providing necessary funds was becoming increasingly burdensome.

Highway Accidents

Philadelphia. Take it from Chrysler W. J. Kach, of the state highway patrol, there is no precedent for the modern automobile to be geared up to more than 50 miles an hour because "the average man is not physically or mentally capable of driving at greater speeds." That, says the group commander, is the explanation for most accidents.

Agreement To Marking Art

Ottawa. Designed to prevent exceptions in the marking of articles manufactured from previous years, while at the same time stabilizing such manufacture among the provinces and universities of Canada, a bill amending the Precious Metals Marking act, passing through it, is expected to be made in the house of commons, plans for third reading.

SYNOPSIS

Camilla Hoyt and Peter Anson, young and in love, marry secretly, feeling to live their own lives apart until Peter is able to provide for them. Peter is a young, struggling sculptor trying to make his way in the world. He is the only child of a wealthy family. She is not to inherit money when she comes of age. Peter is a studious commercial art in the hope of landing an agency job. Others in the story are Avis Werth, another wealthy girl who is trying to win Peter, Sylvia Todd, Peter's mother and Gus Matson, his former roommate with whom he has quarrelled. At a party at an exclusive club Peter entertains Camilla's guests with imperfections. When the rest of the members of the party go to a chateau to continue the night, Peter and Camilla slip off to the beach by themselves. Peter is very early morning and Avis Werth are standing near them. This makes it necessary for Peter to announce before the party that she and Peter are married. Rowman and Weeks, an advertising agency, where Camilla has submitted some of her work, send for her and offer her a salary of $5000 a week to start and a prospect of having it doubled. She tells Peter of her good fortune in securing employment. Mrs. Hoyt is also informed that Camilla has obtained work and is going to leave the Hoyt household. Avis Werth rents a studio on the same floor as Peter, and he writes him to have lunch there. He accepts reluctantly, but is favorably impressed when he visits. Camilla urges Peter to accept some of her earnings to help him along, but Peter refuses and they quarrel. After Camilla has gone from the studio, Avis Werth calls and persuades Peter to accept a loan of $1000.

(Now Go On With The Story)

CHAPTER XLII.

"By the way," Peter said suddenly, "we are invited to a party on Friday night. I have a hunch it's a hot studio-warming, I suppose you would call it, and she commands our presence."

A little frown shadowed Camilla's face for an instant. "I can't understand why Avis looks that large studio when she does practically no painting."

"I suppose because she can afford to do whatever she fancies. Just a whim for the moment."

"No doubt. But, even so, I wonder why she didn't take a place in the Craft building, since money is no obstacle. The apartments are ever so much nicer and more modern."

"She doesn't think so at all. I asked her the same question. She says the older building is ever so much more artistic and has more atmosphere than the new. And you know, her suite looks out on to this little garden court with a window above from each room. I don't know but she's right, at that. Her furnishings are ever so much more effective in those high pillared rooms than they would be in the low rooms of the Craft building, with narrow eave-moldings and shining new varnish. She has some gorgeous stuff."

"Oh, you've seen her apartment?"

"Of course, being her nearest neighbor, I had to pass inspection on it before she opened it to the public," he said lightly. "She's going to have me do some things for her when I get time, too. First prospect, old girl. So you must be her sweetest to do the new client. Remember, the customer is always right, whether she is or not."

"Most of the time she isn't, but I'll do my best for the cause," Camilla smiled gallantly. A little secret fear coiled at her heart—there was a pretension or warning.

But she quickly dismissed any such depressing thoughts. In the past that night with Peter. He was once again the gentle, adoring lover, who laughed delightedly at their quiet remarks and gestures, and who was so much her accompaniment during the three days since she had seen him.

Section of them referred again to the harsh words of their last meeting, and they each believed that the experience was caused as completely as the day itself that he slipped into the past of countless yesterdays. She lay in his arms and was deep in a reverie of his voice with sweet content, lost herself in his ardent kisses and dreamed again of that happy day when they would be together forever.

Camilla would have preferred to decline the invitation for Saturday evening, but she recognized the obligation to duties which she would be called upon to meet many times as Peter's wife. Like him—she would have to serve his public. The more famous he became, the more public would be their private lives. But any duty became a pleasure when it involved being Peter's wife, which position was so wonderfully sweet to her.

Avis was one of the first of those Camilla knew that she never had been particularly fond of. Avis Werth, and her very obvious preference for Peter, had not been a minor aversion to the other girl. It might be flattering to Peter to have other women adore him, but it did make life more secure for his wife.

Camilla told herself that such a course should not be flattering to her—that this man whom other women coveted had selected her from them all, to cherish and honor for all his life. But that was just the trouble, exactly, her caution reminded her. For all his life would probably be for a long time, and there was always a chance—

The studio party was a magnificent gesture to make an impression upon each and every guest for a long time to come. Most of them felt the kind who had grown impatient to impressions, it probably failed in that respect, with two exceptions. And those two were the most important targets of which Avis was aiming—so that was all right.

One was Peter, for every woman who in love will exert herself to the utmost to impress the man she loves. The other was Camilla, who was much more accustomed to expensive displays than Peter; but Avis especially wanted to impress Camilla with the fact that she now held the advantage over her with respect to having money for anything she might wish to do. She did, Camilla thought, although the new felt financially secure about providing for herself, even that salary which she regarded as very good for her position was only a mile as compared to the cost of Avis' party.

The guests were many and varied: Avis' own group of art students and critics, established professionals, favorite models, tenants of the Craft building and the Anson. They dined in and out all the long evening, danced, ate, drank and made merry, with the generous encouragement of the hostess and her husband.

For effect and approbation, she had selected several paintings and sculptured pieces from the most distinguished of the guests for a private collection. They added to the attractions and assured her the approval of the leaders of her adopted profession as a patron of the arts, at least. To a certain extent, her efforts. He liked the producers and the market, and one said did actually culminate from the affair.

Avis was stunning in wide-necked black net, like delicate spider-webs that more revealed than concealed her white shoulders and molded form and set-back ankles before the long full skirt that left the line of her figure half way down to swirl in a clinging fulness as she moved gracefully among her guests.

She held most of the time to Peter's arm, having taken possession of him as soon as she arrived and saying sweetly to Camilla, "I'm sure you won't mind if I give Peter a little bit of the better of this evening. He needs to know people—the kind of people who are here to-night, and I want to be sure he meets everyone and they remember who he is. I want every one to know you, too, but you already know more of them than Peter does and after all, he is the one who has to make an impression with the right people, if he is going to succeed." She inclined her head and lowered her voice, "I especially want him to meet my uncle, Mr. Danforth, who is one of the judging committee for the National exhibit. I'll introduce you to him, my dear."

As a matter of fact, she failed to do so, but Camilla gave no thought to it. She was just as anxious for Peter to meet Mr. Danforth as Avis was.

She smiled a generous approval of her hostess' plans. "Of course, I want you to introduce Peter to Mr. Danforth's place."

Little Helps For This Week

"For this is the will of God, even your sanctification." 1 Thessalonians 4:3.

Between us and Thysell remove whatever hindrances may be. That so our inmost heart may prove.

A holy temple, meet for Thee.

Bear in the presence of God to know thyself. Then seek to know for what God sent thee into the world, how thou hast fulfilled it, art thou yet what God will thee to be, what yet lacketh unto thee, what is God's will for thee now, what thing mayest thou do by His grace to obtain His favor and approve thyself unto Him. Say to Him "Teach me to do Thy will for Thou art my God," and He will say unto thee, "Fear not, I am thy salvation." He will speak peace unto thy soul, He will set thee in the way; He will bear thee above praise of men and things which perish in thy grasp, and give thee, if but after, some glimpse of His own unfading unending unperishing brightness and bliss and love.

Gives Girl Natural Voice

Surgeon Removed Weblike Formation From Vocal Chords

The tools of science, together with the keen eye and deft fingers of a surgeon, have given twenty-year-old Miss Odessa Keppner of Philadelphia, Pa., a natural voice for the first time in her life. Until now, she has spoken only in whispers.

The malady was described by physicians at the Graduate Hospital of the University of Pennsylvania as a weblike formation over her vocal cords. It was removed after its presence had been revealed by a bronchoscope.

Can you remember what calamity you were dreading a year ago?

Almost Instant Relief From Neuralgia

1. "I ALL HAVE TO GET A TAXI AND GO HOME. I'VE DEVELOPED A TERRIBLE HEADACHE AND AN ATTACK OF NEURALGIA."

2. "20 MINUTES LATER—"

"IT'S WONDERFUL HOW QUICKLY MY NEURALGIA WENT. THAT WAS CERTAINLY TRUE."

YES! ISN'T IT WONDERFUL?

Now comes amazingly quick relief from headaches, rheumatism, neuralgia, toothache, etc. And this is really, if it said, not dissimulated.

These results are due to a scientific discovery by which Aspirin Tablets bind to dissolve, or disintegrate, in the muzzling space of two seconds after taking moisture. And hence to "that relief" of pain a few minutes after loosing.

For full illustration of the facts, here, tells the story. An Aspirin Tablet starts to disintegrate almost instantly by your swallow it. And this is really to go to work almost instantly.

When you buy Aspirin, though, be on guard against substitutes. To be sure you get ASPIRIN's quick relief, be sure the name Bayer in the form of a cross is on every tablet of Aspirin.

Genius At Calculation

Seven-Year-Old English Boy Has Uncanny Gift

Try this for a mental sum—multiply 354,689,012,598 by nine—may not be able to do it, but little seven-year-old Lenon Beason, of Harfield L.C.C. School, Burn Oak (Middlesex, England), can. Without pencil or paper to help him, he rattled off the answer 3,192,401,260,000, within eight minutes. He has been two years at school, and while other children are stammering out their "9 times 6s," he is dabbling in millions. His calculating genius is not inherited. "I counted the first five figures and remember that," he said. "Then I counted the next five and remember them and so on..." Then he takes all the figures which he has photographed in his mind and pieces them together in a panorama of millions. And he can repeat the answer backwards!

WHY ASPIRIN WORKS SO FAST

Drop an Aspirin Tablet into a glass of water. Note that B.I.T. (Bayer's Instant Tablet) dissolves in two seconds. It has started to work.

What does this mean? It means that Aspirin works so fast because it dissolves so fast. Hence its fast action.
